I will be out of the office all next week but we should be good when we get this thing scheduled....we have had this discussion so many times I do not think it takes much prep work (we have several presentations already). Based upon the amount of time we get for the briefing that will determine how "deep" the dive can be....

Going by our previous LPC briefings, we have had much greater success if we are in person due to the complexities associated, the increased attention we receive, and the ability to be able to read the room while talking.

WAFWA folks learn more from each other, but it's currently best described in the more detailed brief that Gary requested and Clay and I drafted and sent around last week.

We'll have a refined analysis and message as the date approaches.

She wants a deep dive into our analysis of the adequacy, or lack thereof, of the current RWP. She particularly mentioned wanting to know exactly where and in what manner the conservation actions were happening."
